Personally, I feel that the most impactful Amendment is the right to a trial by jury. If we didn't have a jury, we wouldn't have fair trials, as there would be one all powerful person, who could decide the outcome, much like a king. If we did not have this Amendment, we might have people punished unfairly, and people who commit wrongs, may be let loose, even though they were the one who did the crime. Let's say for example, someone committed a crime against you, and you sued them. Without the Amendment, the judge could rule unfairly against you.
